

pp Lond
—
4
ON SATURDAY, MAY 7, 1791, will be published,

N<sup>o</sup> I. Price SIX - PENCE,

(To be continued Weekly,) Of the

GENERAL REGISTER

O F

PHILOSOPHY, LITERATURE

AND POLITICS.

---

This Work will be divided into three Parts :

PART I. Will give an Account of all Discoveries and Improvements in Philosophy, Mathematics, Chemistry and Arts; with Abstracts of the Transactions of the Philosophical Societies of Europe.

PART II. Will contain a List of new Publications during the Week, and as early a Review as possible of such as are worthy Notice. Occasional Reviews of valuable Foreign Publications will be inserted.

PART III. Will exhibit a concise History of Political Affairs, with Abridgments of State and Public Papers, and such as are necessary will be published at large.

At the End of each Year, such Lists will be inserted as may be judged necessary.

Each Sheet will be printed and paged so as to bind separately, and form a complete Register of the above-mentioned Articles; and at the End of every Volume copious Indexes will be given.

---

LONDON: Published by C. FORSTER, N<sup>o</sup> 41, Poultry; and J. GOOD, No. 159, New Bond Street.

To the PUBLIC.

TH E great Increase of general Knowledge and philosophical Enquiry that pervades all Classes of Men, render a speedy Communication of scientific Improvements daily more necessary. Without invidiously calumniating the general Sources of Intelligence, 'tis sufficient to say that they are for the most part confined either to the Reports of the Hour, or the political Transactions of different Courts. Important as these Objects certainly are, and desirable as political Knowledge is in the present eventful Æra, it is to be regretted that the Haste with which Materials are collected, renders them too often confused, and even invalidates their Credit. Besides which, under every Advantage, they are not sufficient to satisfy the Expectations of this enlightened Age. Philosophical Researches, and the Facts derived from them, cannot be too quickly diffused among the Learned of every Country, who may thus find their Labours shortened, or their Theories anticipated, and Readers of every Description will feel interested in an early Information concerning the Publications of the Time.

As a Work on so extensive and useful a Plan does not at present exist in this Country, the Proprietors make no other Apology for intruding this on the Public, than briefly to explain the Plan on which they mean to conduct it.

The philosophical Part will be compiled by a Gentleman of approved Knowledge, and well known in the learned World.

The literary Part will have several Assistants, the Reviews will be given analytically, with short but candid Strictures.

In the political Department, attachment to Party will be studiously avoided, and all Strictures on public Transactions will be directed by the Dictates of true Philosophy, and a View to the general Happiness of Mankind.

Crude and unauthenticated Pieces of Intelligence can of course have no Place in a Work like this. Facts will be selected with Care and Industry and when well ascertained laid before the Reader in a digested Series.

Such are the Outlines of this Work, for its Execution the Proprietors refer to their first Numbers, submitting to the Decision of a candid and judicious Public.

En-
mu-
in-
ient
s of
at as
is in hich
nva-
not Phi-
too
thus rs of
ning

exist
ding
nean

oved

l be ously

d by inef

have
d In-ested

ictor
d an